

JEFFERSON COUNTY HISTORY CENTER

Founded 1967

Operated by The Jefferson County Historical Society Inc.

March 7, 2012

To a Gentle Reader:

Nathan J. Pearce has been our graduate intern during his two-years of graduate study at Clarion University. He is personable, self-motivated, responsible, and creative. He works well both alone and with people of all ages.

During his time here he has assumed the major responsibility for technology development. He has been responsible for our website, weekly E-letters to our members, and for developing our Facebook page.

As the History Center's curator, I called upon Nathan to develop a series of maps for an exhibit, Drumbeat to War. He created them in a timely manner and took my suggestions to heart upon first review. His work was exhibited during 2011 here and is now at the Punxsutawney Historical & Genealogical Society for 2012. He also videotaped a monologue written and acted by a young Black American for use on one of our three touch-screens. He has updated sections of all three of our touch-screens as well.

As the History Center's educator, I invited Nathan to participate in our fall full-day programs for 180 fourth-grade students. He did so successfully. He also assisted with and attended special events like the PA150 Civil War Road Show which the History Center hosted last July.

Nathan has indeed been part of the History Center's team of paid staff and volunteers. He will be missed. I heartily recommend him to you. He will be a positive contributor to your organization.

Sincerely,

Carole A. Briggs, Curator
